The Veteran Holds His Own On Civvy Street

BY DOUG SMITH

Approximately one year ago the streets of the cities and towns of Canada were lined with cheering crowds, ticker-tape floated down from tall buildings, bands blared martial music as Johnny came marching home.

On November 11th throughout the Dominion the same men paraded to pay their respects to their fallen comrades, together with their fathers of the First Great War. From the year ago picture of blanched webbing with snug fitting khaki or blue uniforms, the scene had changed to assorted shades of worsteds and tweeds. Only the ribbons pinned so carefully and worn so proudly on the left breast and the world-renowned Canadian jaunty step remained to show that once they had been the saviours of democracy.

How have these men who returned to Canada with a cocky air and a not so cocky feeling in their innermost heart about reshaping their lives again stood up after a year of rehabilitation?

Dashed good the Legion thinks and they are proud of them.

Said one old sweat, "By gosh, I believe these young fellows have more ambition than we had."

This is an extremely debatable question and can in no manner be properly understood in view of the difference in circumstances. It is common knowledge that in World War I the soldier in the line was very poorly posted about what was going on "back home" and even less prepared in any manner to face the sudden responsibilities of civilian life.

He was simply brought back on a troopship, given his discharge and a few dollars and from then on he was on his own.

It is true that the Soldiers' Settlement Scheme was founded to give him a start on the land. Farm land was purchased at inflated prices; prices of stock and equipment were also high. Veterans without farm experience were placed on the land, some of them on land untested for its suitability for farming purposes.

While it is not the Legion's intention to start tossing bouquets in any government's lap, nevertheless when good work is done it is among the first to show appreciation. And in the case of the rehabilitation of the World War II veteran the Legion feels that while there is still more to be gained for the veteran yet an appreciable amount has been done towards his rehabilitation when considered in the light of what the veteran of World War I had dished out to him.

Naturally the Legion takes a little pride in this because it was this organization who thru its experience and perseverance managed to have a great deal of these benefits brought into effect.

And so to revert to the remark of the old sweat about one generation having more ambition than another, it just isn't a fair debate. In the First World War the troops returned in many instances uneducated and with four years in the trenches and no opportunity to gain an education. While in World War II the majority of the men spent anywhere from 2 to 4 years in England and took advantage of the Canadian Legion Education Services.

Today the young veteran is either settling on the land, going back to school, taking vocational training, training on the job or is working in some job. Recent statistics show at no time have more than six percent of discharged ex-service personnel drawn out-of-work benefits.

So everything is rosy in the garden on the face of things.

Now let's look behind the gilded picture and see what we have to crab about:

Number one: You guessed it first time and there's no argument against it, it is housing. The housing situation has been badly neglected by the proper authorities. It is realized that all the responsibility cannot be dumped into the government's lap and the provinces, municipalities, private enterprise labor and we, the citizens, have a moral responsibility to see to it that the man who was away fighting to make everything we have and hold dear secure for us is helped out in this respect.

It is appreciated that many civilians are in the same boat, but the proportionate number is not so great. The writer does not profess to have a solution for this problem, but points out that on innumerable occasions Legion officials had warned the government of this housing crisis and urged them to apply the same concerted effort in this direction as they did in executing the war.

Jobs: Everybody is working it seems and the money is rolling in. A job's a job some say. Yet it would be interesting to find out just how many veterans took the first thing that came along rather than be unemployed. In other words "Is he happy in the service?" The veteran is a proud young man and he has been financially independent for a number of years, but he is not too proud to take an honest job.

It could well be that many veterans in their employment are round pegs in square holes. Reports, however, from delighted employers show that the veteran is adapting himself admirably and doing an outstanding job. Which all goes to show that you can't keep a good volunteer down.

The Legion however asks employers to bear in mind that if in some instances there are times when things do not seem to work out to smoothly, to remember that the veteran is going through a transitional period that will in time straighten itself out. Sometime when difficulties are involved it might be a good thing for the employer to have a chat with the secretary of the local Legion branch who is a veteran himself of understanding and experience and in a good position to act as a mediator.

There are a number of legislative undertakings that the Legion has to have agreed upon by the government and which they feel confident that in good time and with customary perseverance they will achieve. In the meantime the young veterans are joining the Legion in their thousands to further strengthen its place in society as the watchdog of veterans' rights.

UNCLE HY SAYS:

December the happiest month of the year, Christmas time coming, it draws quickly near, folks busy planning with heart, head and hand, peace and contentment in this favored land.

December the month when all children are good, for Santa is coming, that's well understood, his pack and his reindeer now ready for flight, and little hearts waiting for that wondrous night.

December the jovous, December the blest, a month that's awaited with interest and zest, no better four weeks in the year you will find, when folks are most generous and all hearts are kind.

Junior Seed Fairs

During October and November, Junior Crop Clubs in Alberta held their annual achievement days. In most cases these took the form of seed fairs. Each member prepared a peak sample from grain produced on a three acre plot, and competed for attractive prizes at his local fair. Members were also given instruction in judging and took part in seed judging contests.

A feature of many seed fairs was the bringing together of two or more clubs at one centre for a joint fair. There is always a competitive spirit among members of a club but the joint fairs gave the added incentive of inter-club competition. The friendly rivalry between clubs and determination on the part of members of each club to put on the best exhibit, resulted in excellent displays of seed.

Some fine samples of seed appeared at these Junior Club Fairs and a few went on to the Toronto Royal Winter Fair to win further honors. An outstanding example is the sample of wheat exhibited by Marie Roppel of the Rockyford Junior Wheat Club. It was sent to the "Royal" where it won the championship in the spring wheat class for juniors. Second place at Toronto went to her sister, Audrey Roppel.

Don't Waste Soap

Don't use soap as a water softener advises Mrs. Macdonald, supervisor of the home economics service. It is wasteful and unnecessarily expensive, particularly during the present soap shortage.

Whenever soap is used with hard water, it must first remove much of the hardness before the desired lather or suds for washing will appear. Even with moderately hard water a considerable amount of soap goes for softening and is destroyed as far as its cleaning action is concerned. Equally undesirable is the insoluble gray curd or scum which soap forms in hard water and which adheres to fabrics and surfaces.

Use a water softener before adding soap. The most common and least expensive is washing soda. But washing soda must be used in correct amounts since if used in excess it is harmful to fabrics and may turn them yellow when ironed.

To test for amount of softener needed: Measure water in your washer or tub. Add one half teaspoon washing soda for every gallon used. Mix and allow to stand 10 minutes. Dip out 1 quart and add 1 level tablespoon of soap to the quart and shake. If a good suds is formed, it is soft enough. If not add a quarter tablespoon of washing soda for every gallon of water and test again. Continue until you have good suds. Write down the amount of softener used and use this amount each time. Always measure the soap too, in a cup or spoon, don't just shake some in.

Note: Lye or caustic soda is a powerful Alkali and not recommended for softening water for household use. Borax with lye has little softening action, but aids laundering by helping cut in suds.

Week Left To File Forms

Only one week remains within which competitors in the National Barley Contest may get in their application forms for judging.

On or before December 15th contestants shipping a carload lot entry must have filed their forms. Each contestant has already received a form made up in triplicate, the top half of which is to be used by those who ship a carload entry.

The deadline has already expired for contestants who are holding their barley on their farms for seed. For them, the last date to file their forms was December 1st.

Those intending to ship a carload entry were given an additional two weeks. The National Barley Contest Committee reminds shippers to be sure their forms are correctly filled and dressed and mailed not later than December 15th. If earlier than this, it will help.

Mail them to the National Barley Contest Committee, 206 Grain Exchange, Winnipeg.

Standing on your dignity will not increase your stature.

We fight to earn a living instead of to learn to live.

Xmas Leaflet

"Christmas Greetings" from your home economics service is a new leaflet with a host of tested Xmas recipes, which are sugar and shortening conscious and also make use of only the available Xmas fruits and other ingredients. There are recipes for dark and light fruit cakes, Xmas pudding, cookies, desserts and salads. A roasting time table for your Xmas bird is included, together with suggestions for Xmas table decoration and menus for holiday entertaining.

A mincemeat recipe sheet is also available. This leaflet gives a choice of three kinds—the uncooked, the English, and one using lean beef. Recipes for using mincemeat in cookies, cakes and bread are included.

Copies of these leaflets can be obtained from the Home Economics Service, Alberta department of agriculture, Edmonton.

Getting Out a Paper

The man who picks up the paper published in his home town, glances through it, sniffs, and says, "Nothing in it," is by no means a rare bird. He lives in every town. As a rule he reads all the papers regularly. He never misses an issue if he can help it. Some even prefer to borrow a copy and thus save five cents. That class is not above explaining just how he'd run the paper. Nine times out of ten he knows nothing about getting out a newspaper. It's curious but true, that the general run of mankind cherish illusions that there is no line of business that's easier than publishing a newspaper. As a matter of fact, it's one of the hardest. Some people cling to the idea that putting a piece in the paper costs nothing, or next to nothing. They overlook the fact that every line that is published represents so much invested capital, so much labor, so much time, so much expense. Printing a paper nowadays cost real money. Machinery and maintenance of same cost. Ink and paper cost. Setting the type, running the press, making up the forms, doing the hundred and one odd jobs around an office, cost. Getting out a paper, no matter how small, means everlasting vigilance, judgment, discretion, an acquaintance with everybody, mechanical skill, a thick skin, a level head, muscular legs, the patience of Job, the wisdom of Solomon, and the faculty of

Only a Kid

A burglar bungled and was caught. "Why," exclaimed the cop who had him by the collar, "he's only a kid!" Only a kid but, in our growing crime wave age group seventeen ranks first. Our country is becoming terrorized by its juvenile delinquents.

Juvenile delinquency is due, it's often said, to delinquent parents. Not just a father and mother who step out a bit themselves. But parents blind to the nature and need of children. Parents who neglect, spoil or dominate their children because they are "just kids". And children don't like to be overlooked, or kept in cotton wool or in a prison cell. So they escape, step out for themselves and get into trouble.

Effective in meeting this serious situation has been the work of Moral Re-Armament. Effective because it strikes at the root of the trouble. It starts with the home—gets parents to change and begin to treat their kids like grown-ups. To take their hands OFF.

Then it gives the kids adult responsibility—a grown-up program. Not more playgrounds or boys' clubs but a plan for their country. A plan to build sound homes—schools where they go because they want to, not because they have to, gangs that are out to build up the town, not tear it apart.

Starting from scratch just a little while ago, hundreds of homes have already been saved from divorce. A new spirit has swept through scores of schools. A gang of former hoodlums have become assistants to the fire department. The school board and town council have united as never before in one major city.

Only kids—but what a difference!

A free spirit means escaping from the blight of self-importance.

Style Restrictions Removed

All style restrictions on the manufacture of women's and children's clothes have now been removed the Prices Board has announced.

With this step the last control over styles of all men's women's and children's clothing has now been eliminated.

Introduced early in the war to conserve material and labor the controls restricted such things as length and sweep of dresses to specified measurements, and eliminated lined skirts, culottes, boleros, capes, evening gowns and other types of clothing considered unessential.

In 1945 all style restrictions on men's clothing were removed and practically all those prohibiting the manufacture of such things as bridal gowns, evening and dinner dresses, pleated back or Norfolk style jackets.

New Labor Booklet

The Dominion Labor Department announces that its "Labor Legislation in Canada in 1945" is now available.

Containing the text or a summary of the labor laws enacted last year by the Parliament of Canada, the provincial legislatures and the Council of the Yukon, this report is the seventh supplement to "Labor Legislation in Canada 1937".

The summary includes data concerning international labor conventions, employment of children, trade unions and collective bargaining, wages and hours of labor, compensation, safety and health, vocational education and apprenticeship, licensing of workmen, seamen, unemployment family allowance pensions and mothers' allowances housing, and post war reconstruction and veterans affairs.

A wide field of labor legislation by the Dominion of Canada and the provinces is covered in the text of this recent publication.

Shelled or Not

With Christmas buying in the air Mrs. Macdonald of the home economics division suggests a little estimating before hand as to the relative cost of shelled and unshelled nuts. Check the price of both at your store and then consult this table to decide whether its worth while spending your time cracking and picking.

The following amounts of unshelled nuts are equal to approximately one pound of kernels:
Almonds 2lbs.; walnuts 2 lbs.; pecans 2 lbs.; Brazil nuts 2 lbs.; chestnuts 1 lb.; filberts 2 lbs.; peanuts 1 1-2 lbs.

Directions for roasting, frying and salting nuts and recipes for Christmas cakes, puddings, cookies and candies can be obtained by writing to the home economics service, Alberta department of agriculture, Edmonton.
